NEW YORK Dec 9—The Herald's Paris correspondent reveals the curious dissensions which mark the failure of the late Mexican Congress Maximilian was all ready at the time to sail for Mexico but finally decided to remain at home by the advice of his friends Napoleon has announced the final withdrawal of the French troops from Mexico by degrees to the people The Empress Frederick William's marriage with the Princess Victoria is warmly urged by the people and finally it is said that the match is not disagreeable to the parties themselves
The chief topic of conversation at the Court Cuba and other transactions in the Colonies of Spain is now represented largely in Madrid and are very powerful forwarding many of the measures during the absence of the Queen Isabella movements in almost every direction to take place

The Daily Oregonian.

FRIDAY MORNING, DEC. 14, 1866.

A New Rule.

At various times during the progress of the war for the suppression of the rebellion, overtures were made by the Government to the rebels with a view of inducing them to return to their allegiance. At the outset, as a measure of pacification, both Congress and the President disclaimed any intention of prosecuting the war for the purpose of subjugation, or of interfering with the "established institutions" of the revolted States. These declarations were made for the purpose of leading the rebels, if possible, back to their duty. They were simply offers on the part of the Government of terms of accommodation. But these overtures were scornfully rejected; the rebels refused to abandon their project, and the Government was compelled to continue the war and disarm them by force. Yet these rebels now come forward and claim the benefit of the terms which they repudiated four or five years ago, and accuse Congress of having broken its faith because it does not grant them the same conditions which they then rejected. That is to say, one of the parties to a negotiation declines an offer that is tendered him and refuses to close the contract; yet after a considerable lapse of time he discovers that he has mistaken his interest, and that it would enure greatly to his advantage to close,—whereupon he endeavors to hold the other party to his original offer and to compel the fulfillment of the terms which he himself had before refused to accept. Now in law, an offer is not binding until it is accepted by the party to whom it is tendered; and in case this party refuses the offer, he cannot afterwards, on changing his mind, claim that the contract is completed, and hold the other to the performance of its conditions. In 1861 Congress announced that the war was not waged for the purpose of overthrowing the "established institutions" of the insurrectionary States. It was hoped that this declaration would lead the rebels sooner to submit. Such, however, was not its effect, and the Government was compelled both to interfere with, and to overthrow those institutions which it would have saved harmless had the insurgents accepted the offer that was tendered them and thrown down their arms. The Government is not bound by any offer it made to the rebels in 1861, or at any other time prior to the final surrender, because those offers were not accepted. The President in his late message cites the Congressional resolution of 1861, which announced the object of the war, for the purpose of showing that he has not deviated from the policy which was pursued throughout the struggle; but his opinion on the cause of thunder would be about as pertinent as this citation. The country got past that declaration long ago. When the President quotes it to establish the rights of the South, he might as well also quote it to show that slavery was wrongfully abolished, for it asserts nothing else so strongly as that the "institutions of the States" should not be meddled with. Yet two years afterwards, slavery, the only "institution" referred to, was declared destroyed, and Andrew Johnson himself, whom we now find asserting that Congress has violated its faith with the rebels, acquiesced in its destruction. He then actively urged the Government, in disregard of its declaration to abolish slavery; but he now quotes from that very declaration to show that Congress has proved false to its promise. The truth is, this announcement long ago became obsolete. It was in the nature of an offer to the rebels to lead them back to their allegiance, and as it was not accepted, the Government is not bound by it. The rebels might as well come forward claiming the benefits of the proclamation which Mr. Lincoln issued in 1862, promising them that if they would cease resistance, slavery should not be abolished, as to claim now that Congress is still bound by an offer which they themselves rejected when it was made. It is a new rule of law and of morals that holds one party strictly bound to a offer after the other party has refused to accept it.

Radical Reconstruction.

It is gratifying to the loyal masses to observe that Congress is pushing forward fearlessly in the discharge of its responsible duties. The hostile and defiant attitude of the rebellious communities of the South does not deter the representatives of the loyal inhabitants of the Union from going on with their work. Congress will be more earnest than it has ever before been. The work of reconstruction is now to begin from the foundation. It is becoming very evident that the next movement will be to provide territorial governments for the South. That this plan will be adopted, hardly admits of a doubt. The action of the South has made it necessary. Reconstruction will go back to where it stood on the surrender of the rebel armies. Traitors will take back seats. Loyal men will govern. The next Congress will assemble immediately after the expiration of the present session, and will vigilantly watch and carefully direct the progress of affairs. Both the people and Congress are now brought face to face with this matter, and there is no room to shirk or evade it. The responsibility must be met. Further experiments and further delays are useless. Reconstruction, radical, thorough and complete, is to begin.

A Democratic "nigger" who aspired to be a Boston Councilman, is defeated in that city by a white abolitionist. Now we shall hear another wail of woe from the entire Copperhead press of Oregon. What is the country coming to when Radical white men beat conservative colored gentlemen in this fashion? But what does this election prove? Why, that the high and holy duty has devolved on the Radicals of saving the country from the horrors of mongrelism. They have made a most auspicious beginning by defeating a Democratic "nigger" in Boston. Who are the friends of the white man now? and who are in favor of a white man's government?

The following eminent authorities are quoted to show the correspondence of great minds:

"If the admission of loyal members to seats in Congress was wise and expedient a year ago, it is no less wise and expedient now."

A. JOHNSON.

"If so be it is, why then so be."

STATE ITEMS.

Patrick Brown, tried a few days ago at Umatilla for murder, will be hung on the 17th of January next.

Thirty thousand bushels of grain were threshed this year on Birch creek in Umatilla county.

There are mines on the Columbia river, about ten miles below Umatilla, where a party have been at work during the past summer and fall making from six to twelve dollars per day to the hand.

The Clerk of Yamhill county sends us some statistics that were made up in his office at the request of the Director of the Statistical Bureau. The number of deeds recorded in his office from July 1st, 1865, to July 1st 1866, was 230; number of acres of land conveyed 24,615; consideration named, $163,825; average value per acre, $6.68; number of mortgages recorded during the same time, 32; number of acres mortgaged, 9,002; amount secured by mortgages, $25,328; value per acre, $3 16. The number of marriage licenses issued during the same time was 45.

A correspondent at Ellensburg writes to the Jacksonville Sentinel: Do you know that in this neighborhood there are good diggings that pay $50 per day to the hand? At Randolph, at the mouth of the Coquelle river, they have discovered the old ocean beach (old as Solomon, probably), some three hundred feet above the beach of the present day, and about three miles inland. At Randolph, the beach diggings of early days, were very rich—$1,000 per day being made—no doubt fed by this older beach now found. At this place (the mouth of Rogue River) formerly known as "Gold Beach," beach mining continues to the present day, and in one locality part of an old ocean beach can be distinctly seen, with its shells, drift-timber, etc., and black sand. The latter was first worked about a year ago, providing good four dollar-a-day diggings, and this was the hint for finding the same at Randolph. It is most likely that the "streak" at Randolph is much older than the one at "Gold Beach," as the latter is only about 30 feet above the present beach, and the sand is not so plentiful nor so rich, and it is probably the second beach. We look for rich discoveries next summer. In prospecting for that "streak" at Randolph, they intend boring, as it is covered with 30 feet of earth and thickly set with timber. A creek cut through and exposed it.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 13.—The Pacific M. S. S. Constitution, which left Panama on the morning of November 30, where she connected with the steamer sailing from New York November 21, arrived here this forenoon.

The United States war steamer Moohonya, sailed for San Francisco the 4th of Acapulco, November 28. The U. S. war steamer Wateree, which has been recruited, had gone to Callao from Panama. The old sloop of war Independence, on a short trip by ship, has arrived at Panama from San Francisco.

Passengers by the Panama steamer report a fleet of French war vessels at Acapulco. One of these vessels had a large number of troops on board. It was reported that the French would evacuate Acapulco in a few days. The French commander had a few days previous attempted to levy a forced contribution or a loan on the town, assessing a large portion of it on the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's property. Fortunately before the exaction could be made, the United States steamer Susquehanna arrived, when the attempt to collect was dropped.

By the last steamer word was brought of the attack and desperation of a column of French troops at a place in Oaxaca, near the line of Tehuantepec. Some three hundred of these troops had resisted the coast and sent word to the French commander at Mazatlan, who had sent the transport Tullaman to their relief. It is probable that three troops were on board the steamer Esperance, in Acapulco, as the garrison at that place only number 150 men.

The following is an extract from a private letter dated Lapaz, Nov. 18th: "Nothing more has been heard concerning the murder of Mr. Lelyand blacklerk, Mr. Everts. Hard fighting is reported to have taken place near Mojave but we have no authentic information. News brought by Indians is that the soldiers brought cannon into action which made great havoc in the Indian ranks."

U. S. Marshal Rand returned on the steamer Constitution after his successful flight at Washington. He expects to receive authority in a week or ten days to lease a building or a portion of one for the use of the U. S. Courts and offices connected with them.

By arrival of the British bark Alarcita, 63 days from Sydney, we have received the Herald of Oct. 5th, being four days later than previous advices via Panama. The brig Isgarnia was totally wrecked on Ashmore reef, August 16th. Crew and passengers after being 10 days at sea all landed safely on Rotid Island. The Herald speaks hopefully of the prospects of the country. The markets are not yet now thronged with merchandize or inundated with speculative schemes. Losses by flood fire and tempests have only brought out the substantial resources of the country. A nugget weighing 87 ounces had been found at Fairbairnia. Heavy rains had fallen at Sydney and Melbourne, also at Adelaide. Wheat is quoted at 5/6 and flour at 12/13 pounds. New Zealand. Four or five vessels of the Australian squadron are at Auckland. The nations are still fighting.

Joan Silks, a native of Maine, aged 32 years, was sent to Stockton as insane. She is very violent and refuses to partake of food. Her insanity was caused by excessive grief at the loss of her child.

Friends of Gen. Placido Vega, residing in this city, have received positive assurances that he is now in Chihuahua, reporting to President Juarez in person, and that all fears for his personal safety are at an end.

Henry F. Doutian has commenced suit against the Central Railroad Company to recover $10,000 damages for personal injuries sustained by plaintiffin falling from the platform of a car in July last, whereby he received severe injuries to his leg and body. He avers that he was thrown from the platform by reason of the cars running off the track.

THE CALIFORNIA MAIL.—Business men and the public in general, are very much pleased that the mail between Portland and San Francisco, during the winter months, will be carried by steamer, which is a great convenience to the public, and in many cases will be as great a benefit as it is to know that KOHN & FISHER, at the ST. LOUIS STORE, receive their wares direct from manufacturers, and therefore are enabled to sell all kinds of clothing, Gents' Shirts, Boots, and everything in their line at lower rates than can be purchased elsewhere.

REMOVAL OF HOME-MANUFACTURE.—There are now on Couch & Flander's wharf a large lot of cedar shingles and laths staves to be shipped on the next trip of the Alert. On her departure, Wednesday, she took 40,000 shingles from the same factory—at St. Johns. These laths are the most perfect in make and are the most nicely put up, of anything of the kind we have seen on this coast. It is said the demand is beyond the supply. The secret of it is, that they are of superior quality and put up in first rate order, and always will be. All that is wanted to create a demand for a number of Oregon products and manufactures, is a little attention to the two or three articles which the St Johns manufacturer seems so well to understand. Make a good article, and put it in the market in good shape, and sure sales and fair profits will result, naturally and of course. Instead of having a reputation for doing this, Oregon is down on the list as one of the most careless and shiftless coasts on the coast. Her butter, for instance, has always been a laughing-stock, and much of it, literally, is in the nostrils of the San Francisco market. And yet Oregon can make as good butter as any country. Oregon hams sell in the California markets, should be, solely at a lower figure than those of any State, just for the want of care and neatness in packing. Carelessness keeps us all the time in a second rate position as a producer, and our pockets suffer accordingly. It would be very easy—and we certainly would, quite by it—to put our domestic products at once into the front rank. Why do not our farmers do it?

TRIAL OF NOT GUILTY.—The case of Lizzie Hollister, Mary Oldsham, Martha Stoltz and Mary Forest, charged with being disorderly, fighting, and beating Barbara Smith, passed the Recorder's Court very near the whole of yesterday. There were large numbers of witnesses on both sides and the examinations were very full. It might be said, exhaustive of the subject. The facts, as proved, were the previous existence of bad blood between the parties, that the frail Barbara, on the day in question, called at the house of the frail defendants and a knock-down-fisticuff-choking-and-shin kicking affair took place, to which Barbara got the worst end, and for which she others got arrested. It was a dark chapter in the annals of Second street and the story of the loves and hates of its nymphs du pave. Jealousy was at the bottom of all, and as usual in the battle, considerable damage, both to her person and certain "great expectations," as was shown by the physician who was called to attend her wounds, as she got her hurts in the "castle" of Mr. ——, the jury concluded she was as much to blame as the others, and they returned a verdict of "not guilty."

TO PUGET SOUND.—The steamer Montana and Orient brought to this city, for sale in the foundries, a large quantity of pig iron Hitherto, all the iron and brass foundries and machine shops, has been imported. That sort of business will be soon played out. In a few months, the inexhaustible prices of Oregon will supply the Oregon demand and if we cannot, turn the tide of freights the other way will, in this day—it will not be long in coming when Oregon will supply herself with all material products for her wants, leaving at home of all that she absolutely needs and lent to that other day when she will refuse to buy what she does not need!

WILLAMETTE FREIGHT.—The steamer from Oregon City, Monday, brought down 256 boxes apples, 3,680 gr sacks flour, 16 gr bx bacon, 5 half bbls butter, 61 boxes tobacco, 1 coop fowls, 1 barrel butter

The Alert's freight consisted of 351 boxes apples 1530 sacks flour, 2 bales goods, 1 case goods, 17 boxes eggs, 1 tub butter, 3 cases lard, 2 bundles trees, 1 coop chickens, 2 cases woolen goods, 2 bales woolen goods 39 sacks bags & pkgs table-toys, 6 boxes mdse, 1 satchel, 3 bags, 20 half bbls butter and eggs, 1 gunny.

ARREST.—Lizzie Hollister, Mary Oldsham Martha Stoltz and Mary Forest, a short time after their discharge from the Recorder's Court on the charge of disorderly conduct were re-arrested on a complaint before Justice of the Peace, Gradon, charging them with an assault and battery upon Barbara Smith. The charge is founded upon the same transaction for which they were tried in the police court, but the action is brought under the statute of the State. They were held for examination this morning at 10 o'clock.

MASONIC.—Tuscan and Chapter No 3, Royal Arch Masons, held an election of the following officers for the ensuing year: F C Schuyler, Jr., H. P., C. H Larrabee, K; E Seymour S., A. R. Field eodon, C. of H., B. F Good Jr., P. S., Henry Saxe, R. A. C. A G Walling 1 Asst. Sojourner, Wm. McMillen, G M. 2d V., Jas. H. Lapsley, G. M. 1st V., N. W. Upton, Sec., J G. Ainsworth, Treas. A. Van Dusen, Sentinel

THE FAIR LAST EVENING.—We visited the Fair for a few minutes last evening and judging from what we saw, the visitors were enjoying themselves highly and everything was going on pleasantly and successfully as could have been desired. We were not able to procure any statement as to the state of the aggregate receipts but learned that they were sufficiently large to be satisfactory to the managers

COAL AND COAL VEIN.—It is stated that Frank Cooper of Salem, has discovered a vein of coal in the mountains about twenty miles from Portland Frank says he has struck it and in proof of the genuineness of the coal says, "there's gas in it" There may be more gas in this story, too, though we don't pretend to say so.

LET MY CHILD.—Robert Colleu was arraigned before the Recorder, yesterday, on a charge of disorderly conduct, using profane, indecent and abusive language to his mother-in-law He pleaded guilty, but urged in extenuation, that he was intoxicated Having been in jail overnight and promising not to offend again he was let off.

STEAMER UPPER WILLAMETTE.—The Alert connected at Oregon City, yesterday, with the Fireman Patton from Salem and above, and brought down a large list of passengers. The Fireman Patton brought down 150 tons of freight.

ARRIVAL OF CAPTAIN.—Jacob Mayer of the City of Paris has just come East and the remainder of his stock will be sold cheaper than ever He advertises this morning a still further reduction of prices.

REASONABLE CONDITIONS.—A crusty old bachelor of our acquaintance noted for his immense wealth and fusty appearance recently solicited the hand of a gay and genial young lady She with the good taste for which her sex is proverbial rejoined that if he would invest a slight fortune of half a dozen or so of Harmon Bros fashionable suits she would give the matter a favorable consideration

HOLIDAY PRESENTS.—WHITE BROS have a large and select assortment of ladies' dress goods—such as Moire antique, silk dresses Poplins and Merinos plain etc—all of which will be sold at reasonable figures Rent

Opportunity for the purchase of HOLIDAY PRESENTS They also offer at retail the largest stock of custom made clothing in Oregon furnishing goods

The Effect of the Elections on the South

[N Y Correspondence of the Richmond Examiner]

It were untrue to say that we are recovering from the effects of the elections, simply because they have produced no impression that was not anticipated and provided for A few credulous readers of newspapers may have looked for a different result, but no man who mixes with the people and forms his judgment in view of facts rather than wishes and prophecies looked for any other verdict than that which has been pronounced

Disguise it if you please—palliate it and explain it away if you can—but the fact is indisputable that the people of the Northern States by an overwhelming majority sustain Congress in its opposition to the President and in its demand for "guarantees" from the South In this city, where, if anywhere, Democratic opinion might be supposed to be dominant it is impossible to avoid the conclusion I have expressed Go into the interior of the State, and the current runs in one direction Visit the Western States as I have lately done, and the Republicanism which here seems Radical, there rises, by comparison, into rational conservatism Nothing like it has been known since the first outburst of passion which followed the report of Sumter's guns Not the trace of evidence of this in the vacillations of time exhibited by talking members of the victorious party Gen. Logan was a moderate man until he visited the constituency on whose back he rode into the House of Representatives, and forthwith he became a roaring Radical And his case serves but to illustrate the prevailing rule The Northern people, or a majority sufficient to control Congress, are to-day arrayed against the constitutional policy of the Executive and their disposition to adopt measures more radical than the proposed constitutional amendment increases with a force that is utterly inexplicable

I tell you in advance, then chorish no hope in regard to the elections yet to come Everywhere it is a clean party fight, and everywhere defeat awaits the Democratic party

How gladly I should report a different state of things you need not be informed But you desire above all things candid, honest impressions, and my aim in this correspondence shall be to give them This is not a time for honeyed phrases, or for pictures that have no merit except as works of the imagination What the country presently requires is a correct conception of its position The North is misled by lying newspapers, by knaves and demagogues, by stories of persecution and cruelty invented and reiterated with the view of fostering the prejudices on which the leaders rely for a continuance of their power The South has been deceived in relation to the Philadelphia Convention, the Northern members of which possessed no representative character whatsoever, and the proceedings of which have not exercised the slightest influence upon Northern opinion And there is danger that the South will be again deceived by the tone in which Democratic editors discuss the elections of Tuesday last, and by the confidence with which they promise a triumph of conservatism in this and other States Plain speaking, therefore, becomes a necessity For the South must in this crisis rely upon itself and itself alone There is no party in the North strong enough to help it acquire the full measure of its rights under the Constitution The Democrats cannot help it, for politically they are unable to save themselves And as to conservative Republicans, take my word for it, they are insignificant in number and destitute of influence The time is past when Thurlow Weed or Mr. Seward could, by lifting a finger, muster an army of followers, and Pruyn, the associate of Hoffman on the New York ticket, will hardly have as many Republican followers as would have saved Sodom in its tribulation.

You cannot fail to notice the marked change which has come over the spirit of our leading newspapers The Herald was the first, as it always is, to scent the course of public opinion Say what you will about the want of principle which regulates Herald management, this, at least, must be confessed—its dexterity in discovering and its facility in accepting the prevalent purposes of Northern people are something wonderful. Infamous it may be, successful it undeniably is At this moment it is more successful than ever in this particular, towering so far above all other city journals that a comparison of the relative profitableness is altogether superfluous After the Herald went the Evening Post, and after these the Times The fact at this moment being that, with the exception of the World, every daily newspaper which until the other week called for the admission of Southern Senators and Representatives without special conditions now declares the ratification of the constitutional amendment a sine qua non. The World, I regret to say, is not prosperous. The Daily News, which battled alone for the South during the war, has passed into other hands, and is just becoming the sensation sheet of New York What is true in this connection of New York is true of the North generally The journals which have acquired and maintain their prosperity by trimming their sails to suit the passing breeze are unitedly on the side of the Republicans touching the constitutional amendment, not because they approve of it as a condition precedent of restoration, but because public opinion, in this section, will be satisfied with nothing less I speak whereof I know when I say that leading men who, as a matter of principle, oppose all conditions of restoration not at variance with the Constitution and the plighted faith of the Government, unhesitatingly express the opinion that as a matter of expediency the South should ratify the amendment to strengthen the moderate elements of Congress, and so to avert the troubles which the extreme Radicals hold in reserve. The opinion is shared by several eminent Southerners who have been here long enough to understand the feeling of the North on the subject of the restoration. Gen Dick Taylor, it is confidentially stated, comes within that category.

Whether the President will yield to the pressure which is being brought to bear upon him remains to be seen He cannot now hope to overcome Congress, but that no serious difficulty is apprehended from anything he may do may be inferred from the inconsiderable influence exerted in Wall street by the bogus dispatch of the Philadelphia Ledger. Although uncontradicted during nearly the whole of the business hours, its effect was limited to a trifling rise in gold Speculation in bonds and shares went on as usual, both were inflated more than before, and the amount of business transacted suffered no diminution. Could anything prove more clearly the absence of panic in full view of a reported contingency that would be equivalent to revolution?

A CALCULATING BRIDEGROOM —I've known some very mean men in my time. There was Deacon Overreach, now he was so mean he always carried a hen in his gig-box when he traveled to pick up the oats his horse wasted in the manger, and lay an egg for his breakfast in the morning And then there was Hugo Himmelman, who made his wife dig potatoes to pay for the marriage license. I must tell you that story of Hugo, for its not a bad one, and good stories, like potatoes, ain't as plenty as they used to be when I was a boy Hugo is a neighbor of mine, though considerably older than I be, and a mean neighbor he is, too Well, when he was going to get married to Gretchen Kolp, he goes down to Parson Rogers, at Digby, to get a license

"Parson," said he, "what's the price of a license?"

"Six dollars," said he

"Six dollars," said Hugo, that's a dreadful sight of money Couldn't you take less"

"No," said he, "that's what they cost me at the Secretary's office, at Halifax"

"Well how much do you ax for publishing in church, then?"

"Nothing," said the Parson.

"Well," said Hugo, "that's so cheap I can't expect to get any change back. I think I'll be published How long does it take?"

"Three Sundays"

"Three Sundays!" says Hugo, "well, that's a long time, too But three Sundays only make a fortnight after all, two for the covers and one for the inside like, and six dollars is a great sum of money for a poor man to throw away. I must wait."

So off he went, a jogging toward home, feeling about as mean as a new sheared sheep, when all at once a bright thought come into his head, and back he went as fast as his horse would carry him

"Parson," said he, "I've changed my mind Here's six dollars, will tie the knot to night with my tongue, that I cannot untie with my teeth"

"Why, what in natur is the meanin' of all this?" said the parson

"Why, said Hugo, "I've been cipherin' it out in my head, and it's cheaper than publishin' banns after all You see sir, it's potato diggin' times, if I wait to be called in church her father will have her work for nothing, and as hands are scarce and wages big, if I marry her to night she can begin to dig our crop to morrow, and that will pay for the license, and just seven shillings over, for there ain't a man in all Clementsport that can dig and carry as many bushels in a day as Gretchen can And, besides fresh wives, like fresh servants, work like smoke at first, but they get saucy and lazy after a while"

"Sir," said a fierce lawyer, "do you on your solemn oath, declare that this is not your hand writing?" "I reckon not," was the cool reply "Does it resemble your handwriting?" "Yes, sir I think it does" "Do you swear that it don't resemble your writing?" "Well, I do, old head" "You take your solemn oath that this writing does not resemble yours in a single letter?" "Yes sir" "Now, how do you know?" "Cause I can't write."

Far Out upon the Prairies

The Chicago Tribune gives the following graphic sketch of the dissolving views to be seen from a flying railroad train on a Western prairie

When the train strikes out from the wooded bluffs and ravines of the Des Moines upon the broad prairie, and you see the grass rank and strong now ripening "with the flowers that grow between —grass that very long ago trampled by the Indian's great herds and never burdened with the semblance of harvest but the swaths of red fire you feel that even by railroad you have escaped from the artifice of society and begin to think about 'leather stockings' and a saddle of venison

You have got out of the realm of white clover that Christian grass of human homesteads for though one of Cowper's novels has set a clover field blossoming in an utter wilderness yet it is a phenomenon never witnessed anywhere else The prairie is not as rough as you find it farther West. There is less of a heavy sea on You keep in the centre of a flying horizon of about twenty miles in diameter The sun shines, but there is a golden blaze in the air.

The light, reflected from distant points gives you illusive hints that you never near but that all at once vanish—"sparkled, exhaled and gone to heaven" The ripening grass of various species growing harmoniously together give you the russets that brighten into yellow and deepen into red, presenting a scene as gay as a painted atlas Little hillocks crested with tall yellow flowers, dot the prairie like the knobbed door of a money vault They are the work of those fellows in striped jackets, the gophers The sky line for miles is unbroken, and the tall grass seems to rustle against the blue around the edges of the world At last a small object is discerned, far out at your right—it has four slim legs and is backed like a camel, beside it is a small cigar box about the color of a wasp's nest. The one is a deserted stage station and the other a wild barn to wit, a small haystack on four stilts. Clever, isn't it? When the horses eat up the roof it is spring But the old rout is abandoned and the lonely objects look as dismal as the fragments of a wreck at sea You think how wild this landscape by and by, when at the sound of the trumpets of March, the gay old storms croon along these plains, tossing the air full of shrouds that never were woven, blotting out the trails and making so stern a white world in a night

Looking about you in the car at last, you discover that the people have changed as much as the landscape. The finer evidence of a higher civilization have vanished The lady with the tilting hoop that passed along the aisle yesterday, fairly flattened into an intersection and resembling a pursuit letter O, with the back of a woman's head and neck curiously sketched at the top of it, has gone The man who donned a new silk hat to travel in has given out The boy who stood up and pulled a screaming accordeon by the tail till everybody thought the law against the "cruelty to animals" was a dead letter, is missing The couple that came on board this morning, hand in hand like the Babes in the Wood, he peppermintish and conscious, she red and rabbonish slipped off together when nobody saw them The fragrance of night-blooming Cereus and patchouly has faded away. the women are fewer, the men franker and rougher Yonder sits a young lawyer and his family, bound for Dacotah It is not present ease he considers, but the far future—the day when that small, fat fellow, in short breeches, clambering about his knee like a young bear cub, shall face him oven eyed and be a man The young man is wise—he will grow with the young State Here are men bound for mines of silver and gold, for mountain peaks and distant forts, for all wild and far away regions

MARK TWAIN MYSTIFIED —Mark Twain sends the following letter to a San Francisco paper

I cannot understand the telegraphic dispatches now a days, with their odd punctuation—I mean with so many question marks thrust in where no questions are asked The dispatches appear to be in the last degree mysterious I fear we are on the eve of fearful things Now, read this ominous telegram I eat it out of this morning's papers, and have been studying over it most of day, but still I don't ceander that I understand it now any better than I did at first

NEW YORK, December 6—The World's Brownsville special says The city of Matamoras was surrounded [?] to] General Sedgwick, commanding the United States forces [?] on the Rio Grande on the evening of the 24th ult. Col T G Perkins, of the Nineteenth U S Infantry, being the only artillery [?] regiment now on duty there, was stationed in command of eleven [?] men of the French [?] cavalry, who crossed over and stultified [occupied?] the city that day, but did not return until the previous [?] day, on account of having to remove [remodel?] the pontoon bridge, to let his baggage train pass over, whereby he did not get back again [where?] in time to prevent it, or at least not as much as he might if he had, and certainly not otherwise if he did not or was unable, or even could not and went back on him So Gen Wzgrcltykrvw [?] thinks

Come, now, this is not right you know I have got to lecture Monday night, and my mind ought to be in repose. It is ruinous to me to have my mind torn up in this way on the eve of a lecture Now, just at the very time that I ought to be serene and undisturbed, comes this dreadful news about Col T G Perkins and his incomprehensible (but I think, wicked) conduct, and Gen Wzgr (insert remainder of alphabet) 's blood curdling thing to unintelligible opinion of it I wish to Heaven I knew what Perkins was trying to do, and what he wanted to do it for, and what he expected to gain by it, and whether he ever accomplished it or not.

I have studied it over patiently and carefully, and it appears that he, with his regiment of American infantry, being the only artillery there, crossed over with his French cavalry and occupied some city or other, and then returned the day before he went over and sent his baggage train across to the other side (of course returning again at some other time not mentioned,) but too late, unfortunately, to prevent it, which this Gen Wzgr, etc, thinks he might if he had, or otherwise if he did not or was unable, he therefore—

However, it ain't any use. The telegram is too many for me Despondently

MARK TWAIN.

TEXAS—RANDALL CONVENTION —R H Epperson, one of the delegates to the Philadelphia Convention, in a speech at Austin City, made the following significant revelations of the secret doings of that body

The speaker, also, had the honor to be on the Committee of Resolutions, and gave us a history of the adoption of those resolutions, especially the ninth one, which he was sorry to see had received so much unfavorable comment in the South That was the only resolution which had caused any debate in the Committee The original resolution was much stronger than the one finally adopted, as it thanked the soldiers and sailors for the suppression of the rebellion When it was read, a delegate from Florida denounced it in the bitterest strain, and was followed by Senator Graham of North Carolina, who spoke, in the same strain, but with less bitterness that the delegate from Florida Levi Woodbury of Boston, one of the noblest and most eloquent men he had ever heard, replied and said that he had always sustained the South upon principle, and was still ready to do be if the Southern delegates commanded it, but so thought it was time for them to become practical He assured the Southern delegates that if that resolution, or something similar, was not passed the conservatives of the North could not carry a single Congressional district and it would be tantamount to a condemnation of Johnson, and the Convention would be an utter failure, that the Southern delegates should give them something upon which they could appeal to the Northern soldiers, and sailors, or all would be lost After considerable debate, the resolutions was materially modified and finally adopted as it stands in the platform. Such a resolution would not be indorsed and would not be presented in our primary meetings in that section, but his hearers must remember that they were adopting situational platforms, and it must be such a one as the people in the North could also support The resolution as passed, simply proposed that the Government of the United States should perform its duty to the soldiers and sailors of the Federal Government by paying them what was due them for services rendered and for bounties promised, and nothing more The Northern delegates then proposed a resolution complimentary of the gallantry and devotion of the Southern soldiers in the war but to this the Southern delegates were opposed, as they were satisfied to leave their soldiers to the verdict of history and but for this opposition, such a resolution would have received the unanimous vote of the Northern delegates

THE CHOLERA —The Gazette des Nobles of Mon now, has the following truly rich and inimitable passage

"Hitherto, thanks to the very visible protection of Providence, the cholera has confined its attacks strictly to the very lowest orders of society, but at present it rages among the highest citizens, and attacks even the nobles!"

Marbleu! See you! That impudent scourge, the cholera ventures to attack even you—even the nobles Where will such audacity find a limit? Why some day, perhaps we shall even hear of its afflicting the intestines and stopping the breath of some crowned head! That same cholera really becomes too republican, it actually has as little respect even for the nobles as certain sign of the times plainly tell us that the long trampled peoples will some day have!
